

Vice President for Academic Affairs

Quincy University seeks an experienced teacher-scholar with a strong record of academic administrative experience to serve as Vice President for Academic Affairs. The appointee serves as the primary advocate for academic excellence in partnership with an outstanding faculty deeply committed to undergraduate and graduate teaching and scholarship. The VPAA will lead the institution in the absence of the president and carries the responsibility for enhancing the quality of undergraduate and graduate education through the promotion of excellence in teaching, the development of scholarship, and close student-faculty interactions. It is anticipated that the VPAA will begin duties on June 1, 2010.

The University community seeks a servant leader with a passion for improving academic programs and services, intellectual vitality, experience with program and curriculum development, a commitment to the arts and sciences, professional training and faculty development, outstanding leadership and management skills, a sense of humor, and a commitment to educational excellence in a diverse world.

The successful candidate will present distinguished teaching and professional credentials as evidence of superior skills and broad experience in administration.

Quincy University is, by tradition and choice, a Catholic, liberal arts institution in the Franciscan tradition serving community, society, and the wider world. As a liberal arts school, Quincy pursues excellence in teaching, learning, and scholarship. All who share its life are challenged to be open to new ideas, to be patient with ambiguity and uncertainty, and to combine a passion for truth with respect for the views of others.
